Our beloved Main Street will be complete

Willow Creek is Growing

What could be coming to our small town?

The Golden Manor isn't the only new business coming to our little small town. Back in October, the Willow Creek Press reported the old Barnaby Estate was getting a makeover and becoming a safe palce for our senior population. According to Angelo Creek of Firm Foundations, restorations are on schedule to be finished in May with a grand opening in early June.

But that's not the only project he's working on. According to council records, an anonymous donor has purchased the final empty shop on Main Street. Records don't say what establishment is going in the shop. A strange story for sure.

Council bylaws have always required that business owners be upfront about their plans for any new venture in town unless approved solely by the founding family. Which begs the question, did Angelo Creek approve the new business? Why the secrecy? What new shop is coming to Willow Creek and who is the owner? This reporter will discover the secret and be sure to pass along the information. It's only fair to the residents.
